

Life is fun

We are trying to reach goals.
We interact with other people.
They may interfere with our plans.
So technically speaking life is a game.

Of all games, life has the most complicated rules.
Our goals in life are not clear.
The methods of reaching the goals are different for everyone.

When children play games,
they are preparing themselves for the big game of Life.

Games teach us

How to make difficult decisions rationally.
How think fast under pressure.
To deal with stress and loss.
To be goal oriented.
That it is not OK to cheat.
The joy of participating.

Unfortunately

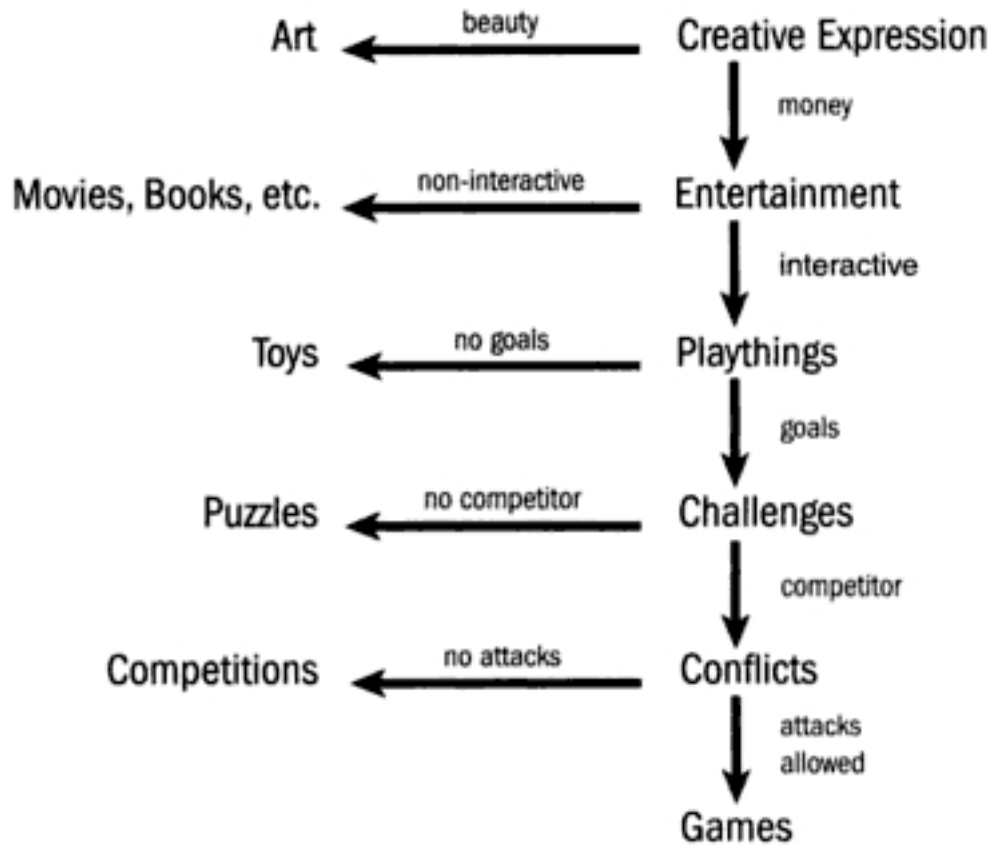

Life is not fun for everyone.
Some people are isolated from society.
Others are forbidden to participate.
Some people have no hope - can't set goals.
Often life is not a game, but a work of survival.

Whenever you can

You should participate.
Do what you love.
Play the game of life.
Participating is more valuable than winning.
You owe it to the unfortunate.

Based on the work of Chris Crawford
Written and realised by Oliver Alex
oliveralexmusic@gmail.com
www.oliveralex.com

Theory on 'games' by Chris Crawford

Based on the work of Chris Crawford
Written and realised by Oliver Alex
oliveralexmusic@gmail.com
www.oliveralex.com

